STOPS ACTIVITY OF HUGE BATTLE LINE

ELEMENTS RESTRAIN WAR MA-CHINES IN FRANCE—SICK-NESS STALKS ABROAD.

FLOODS ALSO PROVE BAR

Pneumonia Making Itself Felt in the Ranks of Both Armies—Paris Announces That There is Nothing to Report.

Paris.—The battle front in Flanders and in France from the sea to the Meuse is storm bound.

What the two greatest war machines ever assembled in the history of the world have failed to accomplish with their ultra-modern engines of destruction, the elements, in the phraseology of the war office reports,
brought to a successful conclusion.

Both great armies are silenced.
Rival battle lines which a week ago were great towers of strength
waging a titanic struggle for the gain of a few hundred yards, only to lose it again as the vanquished of the morning's conflict by a supreme effort became the victors with the coming of night, remained two impotent masses. Great numbers were stricken down before the fury of a terrific blizzard which leveled the trenches,
enveloped the big guns and chilled
the marrow in the bones of the fighting men.

Where a week ago singing bullets
and shrieking shells bore the fearful message of death, disease now stalks
as the all-powerful and fear-inspiring enemy of foe and friend alike.

Thousands of cases of pneumonia
have been reported from the front, and every train to the rear from the allies' lines in Flanders and along the Oise and the Aisne bore great contingents of officers and men invalided back by serious illness.

The official report from Bordeaux states merely that there "is nothing notable to announce." This negatively confirms the unofficial reports from the front telling of the terrific effect of the blizzards. The report officially contains the developments of the current day.

NAVAL FIGHT IN BLACK SEA

German Cruisers Goeben and Breslau
Take Part—Fight lasts 40 Minutes
—Goeben Damaged.

Petrograd.—The cruiser Goeben of the Turkish navy was damaged by an explosion caused by a shell which struck her amidships during a naval battle with a division of the Russian Black Sea fleet and set afire, according to an official report by the ministry of marine. The Goeben fled into the fog and disappeared, still in flames, accompanied by the cruiser Breslau, says the report.

The official narrative of the encounter relates that a division of the Black Sea fleet, which was returning from a cruise to Sebastopol, sighted, 25 miles from the Bosphorus light, a Turkish detachment of warships, consisting of the Goeben and Breslau. The initial salvo from the 12-inch battery of the flagship struck the Goeben amidships.
An explosion was caused as a result of the Avstary's hits and the Goeben immediately broke into flames on her port amidships.

The Goeben was slow to reply and as the range was close there could be seen on her decks scenes of great confusion.

Other explosions followed on the Goeben. Still the reply of the German cruiser was not effective. Evidently the enemy's ships were not prepared for action on such short notice.

Finally the German gunners on their big guns into action and opened with salvoes against the flagship, which they seemed determined to disable.

None of their shots was directed at the accompanying units of the Russian fleet, despite the fact that all the Russian warships were firing into the two Turks.

The battle lasted for 40 minutes,
when of a sudden the Goeben veered off and withdrew, disappearing in the fog. The Breslau followed. The Russian division took up the pursuit, but the speed of the enemy's ships was too great and the chase had to be given up.

Cavalry Was Smashed.
The Hague.—The Russian army in Poland maintains three times as many cavalrymen as the Germans. This cavalry swarmed after the retreating Germans and when the Germans suddenly stopped the Russian cavalry was dashed to pieces like migrating birds against a rock.

Russia Is Ready.
Petrograd.—Failure of the United States to enter into immediate negociations for a new trade treaty with Russia has caused surprise here.

GENERAL VON FALKENHAYN
has been appointed chief of staff of the German army to succeed Gen.
Count Helmuth von Moltke, who resigned on account of ill health.

SOLDIERS BATTLE IN MUD

Fierce Infantry Attacks End Without Material Advantage on Either Side
—Cannonading Resumed.

Paris.—The battle in Flanders is becoming more and more restricted in the area between Ypres and the Lys.
The flooded country has extended until it reached well south of Yperlee.
In addition the rainy season has set in,
transforming the fields into swamps.
The region is almost impassable and the conditions evidence the hardship
of the Germans who have maintained their armies in a country the soil of which is nothing but liquid mud and where the villages that might afford shelter have been destroyed. The allies have behind them the excellent roads and railways of Northern France.

The Germans are directing their energies to forcing passages between Dix-mude and Bixchoote. A violent cannonade, the customary prelude for an infantry attack in force, raged all day.
Simultaneously the Germans appear to be gathering forces for an attack on Labassee, to force their way through to Bethune and Hazebrouck, important railway junctions whose possession
would cut off the allies' left wing.

Fighting almost as intense as in Flanders continues on the French right flank in the region of Verdun, which the Germans are persistently trying to invest.

The allies have advanced at five points along the 300-mile battle front

the Yser, at a point between Armentieres and Arras, in the vicinity of Vailly, in the Aronne and on heights of the Meuse.

SAVAGE CHARGE OF TURKOS SAVES DAY

ALGERIAN TROOPS WIN VICTORY FOR ALLIES AT TRACY-LE-VAL.
GERMANS REPULSED.

NO CHANGE IN FLANDERS

Fight Between Germans and Algerians Lasted an Hour and Was One of the Piercest Hand-to-Hand Battles of the War.

Paris.—Forces are gathering for decisive events in Flanders.

The big guns are at it again, conducting a bombardment of the allies' positions from the German lines. The French and British guns are replying in kind, with less vigor. Under cover of the artillery activity both armies
are moving troops with great rapidity
and in great numbers.

The movement is southward, and it is believed the next great effort of the Germans will be made to the south of Ypres, probably at Armentieres. Aerial scouts of both the Germans and allies were extremely active all day, according to unofficial reports from the front.

The allies took possession of Tracy-le-Val several days ago and the Germans on Tuesday returned to the attack with the intention of recapturing
the town.

That it carried them up to and over the first line of entrenchments. Spurred on by the success of this effort, they advanced rapidly on the second line.

The Algerian contingent, which had been called from the reserve to support the first line trenches when it was seen the French troops were about to be overwhelmed, passed the retiring French troops on the road. The latter were almost exhausted from the vigor of the fighting and the Algerians were fresh and their officers insisted that they be permitted to meet the second blow of the attackers.

As the French fell back, fighting alone the way, suddenly there was uncovered
to the view of the oncoming Germans a solid front of turbaned Furcos. They fell on the Germans with blood-curdling
yells and cut them with lead and steel.

The fighting was terrific. The Turks went down into them and fought their man to man until the German front was broken and shattered. Dead were scattered thick and many were trampled under foot. The cross roads, which was a mass of tangled, swinging parrying, gouging warriors, lunging
back and forth in a desperate battle.

Men of Allied for over an hour at this point, until finally the fury of the Tur-cos' onslaught began to tell and the Germans beat a disorderly retreat.

The Algerians pushed their advantage with renewed energy and drove the enemy well beyond the outer trenches, regaining every foot of the ground that had been lost.

HURL SELVES AT ENEMY

Czar's Men Are Fighting Desperately

Terrific Fire of German Guns.

Petrograd.—The following official communication from general headquarters was issued here:—

"Between the Vistula and the Warta our advance guards in the engagement with the Germans, who took the offensive, fell back in the direction of Broure. The enemy succeeded in gaining a footing in the region of Lentchitz (Lentz) and Orloff.

LIEUTENANT WEDDIGEN
Senior Lieutenant Otto Weddigen,
commander of the German submarine
U-9, which sank four British cruisers in the North Sea, is now one of the most decorated men in Germany. The emperor of Austria made him knight of the Order of Leopold and presents
of money were sent him by the Na-

by Emil Bauer, Berlin mine owner.

HARD FIGHT NEAR YPRES

Artillery Battle Fought on Coast—
Fight Probably Precedes Infantry
Attack by Germans.

London.—The latest official communication regarding operations on western battlefields are much the same as those of preceding days. There has been fighting virtually all along the front, but without appreciable change
in the situation.

From the coast of Flanders to the River Lys, on the Franco-Belgian border, much of which has been flooded
by the allies to hinder German attacks, there has been a repetition on a somewhat smaller scale of the bombardment which the invaders invariably resort to in the hope of breaking down
the allies' resistance before the infantry attacks, and in isolated spots at tacks in force, but according to the French and British reports, all these have been repulsed.

The Anglo-French forces which have been held under fire around Ypres
again have been subjected to determined attacks, from German troops
having attempted to force the allies
out of their trenches.

As was the case with the Prussian guard, the Germans who made the latest effort appear to have taken the first line of trenches, but, like the Germans, on the offensive, and so often enfiladed after success was nearly in their hands, are said to have suffered enormously.

The French Zouaves, who frequently have distinguished themselves by dashing charges, have been utilized again to dislodge the Germans from a position near Bixchoote over which there has been much fighting, and, according to the French statement, they have again been successful.

These incidents merely are examples of what has been occurring in Northern France, along the Aisne Valley,
across the Meuse, in the Argonne forest
and on the banks of the River Meuse.

Sanguinary Engagements Mark the Fighting in East Prussia Where Russians Claim Advantage.

Petrograd.—An official communication issued by the Russian general
headquarters says:

"In East Prussia the enemy is falling back along the whole front between Gumbinnen and Anserburg,
while continuing to hold the passages
in the Masurian Lakes.

"On the front between the Vistula
and Warta Rivers (in Russian Poland)
the fighting continues, taking the character of a great battle.

"There are important German forces in Galicia. We have reached the region of Dukla and the passage of Ulok."

Berlin.—Whether the latest German victories in the east have stopped
the Russian advance cannot yet be foretold, but German military officials say they undoubtedly have resulted in giving the Germans an excellent strategic position and at the same time in increasing the difficulties of the enemy's situation.

Governor of Warsaw Captured.

London.—Among the Russian prisoners captured by the Germans in the battle of Kuno were the governor of Warsaw and his staff, according to a Berlin Telegram forwarded to Reuters
Telegram company from Amsterdam.

Prince, Aide De Camp.

London.—It was officially announced
in London that the prince of Wales had been appointed aide de camp to Field Marshal Sir John French, the commander of the British expeditionary force on the continent.

VILLA TROOPS MOVING SOUTH

Pancho Expects to Enter Mexico City
Sunday—All Public Offices in Capital Are Vacated and Apprehension Prevails.

Veracruz, Mexico.—An unconfirmed report has reached here that Gen. Lucio Blanco of the constitutionalist forces by a coup d'etat has made himself executive head in Mexico City
by imprisoning Gen. Obregon.

El Paso, Texas.—Keeping strong forces throughout the north to the border, Gen. Villa expressed the belief that he would be able, with little effort to compel the surrender of all hostile forces, and to occupy the capital by Sunday.

The Villa army, moving into Quer-taro, will continue its movement into the city of Mexico. Every effort will be made, staff officers said, to place
a large force of troops in the national capital before any serious disturbances can develop in the capital.

With the entry of the Villa army
to the vicinity of the capital, a union is expected to be effected with the armies of Gen. Zapata, which are operating east, west and south of the city of Mexico, and one of which compelled the surrender of the strongholds of Puebla. The eastern Zapata army will move against Cordoba and Orizaba, where Gen. Yonustiano Carrillo now has his headquarters.

In the meantime Villa's eastern army, under command of Gen. Mariano Servin, was steadily forcing its way from San Luis Potosi, capital of the state of Tampico, which is held by a large constitutionalist garrison.

Reports from Naco, Ariz., told of more skirmish fighting between the armies of Gen. Benjamin Hill, intrenched in Naco, Sonora, and the Villa troops of Gov. Jose Maria Martorena, attacking the town. There were few casualties.

Distribution of Harvest Funds.

Chicago.—Opening of the interstate conference on how best to distribute harvest funds in the grain-growing states of the Missouri Valley has been set for Dec. 7 in Kansas City. The conference is under the guidance of the United States commission on industrial relations.

Goosebone Says Mild Winter.

Logansport, Ind.—Uncle Joe Patterson, goosebone prognosticator, predicts that the coming winter will be a mild one. He says that the bone this year shows but one cold spell, and that will come the latter part of the winter.

Body of Man Found in Box Car.

Bloomington, Ill.—Central Illinois
authorities have been asked to seek clues in the murder of F. D. Glendon of Newcastle, Ind., whose body was found in a box car arriving in Pekin from Nelson, Ill. His brother resides in Toronto, Canada.

Pullman Officials Examined.

San Francisco, Cal.—Officials of the Pullman Car Company appeared before the California railroad commission here to show cause why their rates for Pullman service should not be revised. The hearing probably will continue for several days.

New Aid for Admiral Dewey.

Washington.—Lieutenant Commander L. B. Sargent, aide to Admiral Dewey for the last three years, has been assigned to the battleship North Dakota, and succeeded as aid by Lieut. David M. Le Breton.

Indiana Bank Robbed of $5,000.

Hammond, Ind.—After cutting telephone and telegraph wires, five men blew open the safe of the State Bank of Chalmers, Ind., and escaped with $5,000.

Offers Turn Pink.

Washington.—The bureau of chemistry has received a batch of freak oysters, taken from beds in Long Island Sound. They look like a regular oyster, but turn pink when opened.

Mrs. Stonewall Jackson Very Ill.

Charlotte, N. C.—Mrs. Stonewall
Jackson, widow of the famous Confederate general, is critically ill at her home in this city. She is in her 84th year.

Girl Eats Pancakes, Dies.

Mount Pleasant, Ia.—Inez Jordan, 14 years old, daughter of J. B. Jordan, is dead, and other members of the family are in a critical condition
as the result of eating pancakes
which contained poison.

Initiative Lost in Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss.—A proposed constitutional amendment providing for the initiative and referendum in Mississippi was defeated by 62 votes in the election of Nov. 3, according to official returns.

The Ambition of Mark Truitt

By HENRY RUSSELL MILLER

Author of "THE MAN HIGHER UP," "HIS RISE TO POWER," Etc.

(Copyright, 1913, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company)

He became conscious of Simon's curious gaze and turned sharply on him. "Old man, you seem to know a surprising lot about making steel. Look down the valley—there, on those hills. Do you see anything that isn't there?" Simon looked and nodded. "I've been seeing it more'n forty years."

Henley stared. "Humph! An epidemic. There's magic in these hills. His thoughtful glance swept them once more. "But d—d alluring magic."

The gentle, sometimes plaintive voice of the preacher had no power to distract from thought. His wistful message could not reach the man for whom it had been prepared in the hope that it would come to him with healing in its wings.

The benediction had been said. Mark went quietly from his rear pew out of the church and limped slowly along the dusty, weed-fanked path until he came to a minor crest. There he dropped on the roadside and turned his eyes to the valley.

The murmurous quiet of noonday was about him.

Up the rise, village bound, creaked a battered old top-buggy, bearing a passenger whose grizzled beard and lined face, too, showed the marks of time's battering.

The buggy drew up beside him. "Did he find you?"

"Who?"

The doctor chuckled. "Guess he didn't, or you wouldn't have to ask. He's a vigorous party that doesn't understand the joy of talk. I took him from Number Four to your place."

"Short and stout?"

"And not much for looks," Hedges concluded the portrait. "That's him. Has a way with him, though. And the habit of taking what he wants, I guess, without waiting."

"Sunday traffic," the doctor drawled, "is getting pretty heavy. Number Four brought a woman, too. Expecting any baggage of that kind?"

Mark shook his head absently.

"No? That's too bad. She's a new kind for Bethel—a right pleasant kind, too, though I'm not sure how our women'd take her." The doctor grinned, but his pleasant won't answer to the man's. "Well, I must be moseying along. Better ride into town. The vigorous party'll be near to apoplexy by now, waiting for you."

Mark got in and the buggy resumed its creaking journey. The doctor grinned, but his pleasant won't answer to the man's. "Well, I must be moseying along. Better ride into town. The vigorous party'll be near to apoplexy by now, waiting for you."

"Not conspicuously so. The place was here, and it served my purpose very well. I don't need much room, you know. I'm not a Wall Street hero."

"Humph!" grunted Henley, still a skeptic.

"What," Mark asked, "did you come here for?"

Henley grunted again. "Cordial, I must say! I came to restore your sanity." He rose, mopping his red face with a silk handkerchief. "Take me out of this sun and I'll begin. I hear you're pretty far gone."

Mark led him into a cool office-like room—pleasant enough—and made him comfortable with a chair and a chair by a window from which a view of the valley was to be had.

"Not sybaritic," Henley grudgingly admitted, "but good enough for a man who has no women. Now tell me what you're trying to do here."

And Mark began, simply, without enthusiasm or sentimentalizing, to set forth his idea.

The explanation came to an end. Mark awaited his auditor's comment.

"Of course, you know," Henley said, "with an easiness that was outward only, 'you won't put it through.'"

"I do not know that," Mark answered quietly. "This valley is well situated with respect to the market. Its transportation facilities are good. Our fuel is here, and I can get ore here cheaper than Quincy or MacGregor. I can make steel cheaper than anybody in America, and there's no plant of its size that can equal mine in capacity. In ten years, with a fair field—"

"With a fair field. Exactly!"

"You mean I won't have it?"

"You won't have it."

"Why?"

"For one thing—profits."

"I'll make money here."

"It isn't a question of your profits nor of profits alone, but the size of profits. No," Henley shook his head vigorously, "you can't have it. I'm here to tell you that."

"Well?"

"I have no objection to your safety appliances. They're practical. They'll save twice their cost in damages every year."

"That's obvious."

"I'll agree to the baths. If the men want to clean up after work—why, I regard bathing as a very proper habit."

Mark smiled. "The man will be grateful."

"I'm not joking," Henley reminded Mark sternly. "I'll go as far as to agree to their eight-hour shift—as an experiment. I'd like to see it tried out."

"Yes?"

"Your company stores, company gardens and company homes are well enough. They can be made profitable—properly handled. But your profit-sharing plan is all wrong and—"

Henley leaned forward and tapped on the arm of his chair to emphasize each word—"and you can't have it. I wouldn't care if you gave them only a nominal share. It would be useful—at first—to get good men up here. Afterward you could cut it out. But why, in God's name, give them half?"

"Because I'll need the other half for some things I'm planning."

"I'm not joking," Henley repeated. "Why give them half?"

"Oh, that's an approximation. It seems to me a pretty fair division of the spoils. I don't insist on its accuracy. However, that's not the point."

Mark straightened up in his seat by the desk, facing Henley squarely. "Have you forgotten that my money and mine only is invested in this plant? I can quote good authority, yourself, that a man ought to be allowed to run his own business to suit himself."

"As long as he hurts no one else."

Mark smiled again at that. "You said you weren't joking. I suppose you aren't. That's the joke of it. However, the point is, you forbid me to conduct my own business in my own way. And your authority?"

"The power," answered Henley quietly, "to smash you—and the will. We've got labor where we want it in this business and we propose to keep it there. What you propose would be a dangerous precedent. If we let you succeed, we'd have the men all over the country hammering for the same freak conditions. Therefore, we won't let you succeed."

"I see. And you?"

"If I show you—have you forgotten that?—and I'm responsible for you. I helped to put labor where it is, at some risk to myself, and I don't propose to have a man of my own making undo the biggest thing I've ever done. Therefore, I won't let you succeed."

"You are quite sure you can do it—smash me?"

"Truitt, every steel company in the country will make it its business to put you out."

"And you won't stand aside and let me fight it out with the rest of them?"

"No," Henley seemed astonished at the question. "Certainly not. What did you expect?"

"I had hoped," Mark answered slowly, "that you'd stay out of it."

realized I had no reason to hope that."

Henley stirred restlessly, turned to look out upon the valley, upon the city that had not yet arisen. An uneasy qualm moved his heart, continued with a sharpness that was almost akin to pain. He found himself realising an absurd, an incredible impulse—a tenderness such as he had used to know, stealthily and unadmittedly, for a young half invalid with the habit of tripping where robust men fell, multiplied now for this man.

"Truitt, I—" Henley stopped; an embarrassment as unwonted as the impulse upon him, and turned again to the window.

"Truitt," he began again, very gruffly, eyes still fixed on the city the magic of the hills revealed to him. "I—well, I like you. I've always counted you my friend. I don't want to have to fight you. I don't think you want to fight me. There is—there may be another alternative." He turned to face Mark. "Take me in with you."

Mark looked his astonishment.

"I say," Henley went on, "I might do it. I've seen something this morning—something you've been seeing. The city out there. It's big—big! And if the figures you've given me are correct, it's possible. This place was intended for a city. And with us working together, it could be ten times bigger—supertendous!"

He got to his feet, and shooting out the shade, stood looking thoughtfully out of the window.

"We'd make it," Henley seemed almost to be thinking aloud, "a city from the beginning. We'd get the government to make the river navigable to the mouth and ship our coal by boat to the gulf. I can think of a dozen concerns I could get to move their plants here and contract with them to undertake to house the people. In five years we'd have fifty thousand here, and coming as fast as we could put roofs over them. But we'd build on steel. We'd quadruple your plant at once—for a start. Then, in the steel center and this overgrown town with its graft and favoritism and slipshod methods would have to reckon with us. We'd leave Quincy and that Scotch bapiste, grown fat on other men's brains, in the shade. By God! Henley's voice was ringing, as he wheeled on Mark again. "It would be the big thing of the century—making a city to order. And I guess for that you'd be willing to give up your little two-by-four paternalism."

"Certainly! Well—" Henley seemed unconscious of the change of mood and tenor. "We'll leave fads to the cranks. We'll build this city on a rock—on a sound financial foundation—on the profits for extensions."

"I think you don't understand what I—"

"Understand? Of course I understand. That's why the idea grips me. You're a born battler; things were coming too easy for you. You need obstacles, I've got to extend yourself. I need that. I've got a hold in Wall Street. I can tighten my hold. But I'm not a money-grubber. I've got to see things growing under my hand. What I'm at now is just a game. This would be a work, the kind I need. Will you consider it?"

"Are you offering it?"

"I'm offering it as a possible alternative to putting you out of business. There may be magic in these hills, but if the thing works out on study as I believe now it will, I'll do it. What do you say?"

"And you say," Mark insisted, "that the only possible alternative to fighting you?"

"To being," Henley corrected grimly, "put out of business."

It was Mark's turn to go to the window. He stood there silent, for many minutes, looking not upon the city that might be but upon the little village that was.

"What do you say?" Henley demanded impatiently.

"It doesn't tempt," Mark faced him steadily. "You were mistaken. I don't want battle. I don't want obstacles. But I do want to put that through. He nodded toward the village and the mills.

"Humph! You'll find plenty of obstacles and battles over there."

"Yes. But there would be compensations."

"I would give you compensations. Do you mean," Henley demanded, "you choose to hobble along with a little one-horse plant and philanthropy when you might go with me into something really big? Compensations! You'll end in losing all you have."

"All the money I have," Mark corrected. "That is possible. But I'm not worrying about the poor farm. I expect, when that happens, I can find a good job somewhere."

"Then," Henley fired his last gun, gruffly, "then you choose those people over there against me—who made you?"

"They helped to make me—to make you, too—You," Mark answered quietly, "don't tempt."

"I'd like you to understand," he continued after a little pause, "since you've mentioned friendship, I don't like to think of you as an enemy. But this plan, this idea, is worth a good deal to me, even though the chance of success is small. It came to me before the strike. And at first it was only the shallow sentimentality you think it. Then it became a refuge. I came here because there was a thing—Henley saw the shadow that passed over his face—"a thing I wanted to forget, something I needed to earn. But now it's grown beyond that. It has a value of its own. It's my night—the thing I must do. You've helped me to make that clear."

"You ought to understand it, for you had it. It's what saved you from being like the other money-grubbers."

You came close to being one of them. Why, once when Quincy cracked the whip you—you—erred like a whipped dog before the old blather, alive because you loved your money. You remember that, don't you? And then you ran afoul of him again, over the strike, when the same threat hung over you, and you didn't cringe. You beat him down. Why?"

"I couldn't let—"

"No, you couldn't. You believed opposing him would cost you much. The strike you forced did take hundreds of thousands from the value of your stock. But you didn't think of that then. And now—you've claimed my friendship. How much does it mean to you?"

"A good deal," Truitt. Henley answered slowly. "It's the only friendship I ever wanted. It's my reason for making you what you are."

"Friendship means obligation—you've just reminded me of that. Would it add to your obligation if I told you that you got away without all from Quincy because of me?"

"What! What's this? You never told me—"

"It wasn't I who did it but a woman."

Henley saw the shadow again.

"What?"

"What?"

"What?"

room to heaven. There had even been a period in that far-off, innocent girlhood when she had thought of it as a beautiful restful haven, to which, some day when he should have tired of the greedy city and its grind, her lover might bring her. Always, it seemed, she had needed and wanted a haven. If only he had brought her then, what might have been saved!

"What might have been saved? But I mustn't think of that."

From down a narrow lane she caught a glimpse of the river, smiling in the sunlight. It beckoned to her and she obeyed, turning her steps upstream. A thick grove of oaks and chestnuts shut her off from the village and she was alone with the river and forest. River and forest held many memories for her.

Hours passed. A few doozy, tumbling clouds floated over her. Heavier and less silvery masses appeared over the western horizon. The wind freshened. She did not notice. . . . And suddenly she knew that she was not alone.

She turned and saw him standing near, staring, bewildered yet strangely eager, toward her. Her lips parted, her bosom lifted in a sharp intake of breath, as their eyes met. Then she got slowly to her feet, trying to look away that she might regain a lost self-control.

He started toward her, with the peculiar halting step she never could see without a tender maternal impulse. Scarcely two yards away he stopped.

"Kazia—you!"

"Yes."

"But I," he stammered, "I don't understand."

Self-control was coming back. "I came to see Piotr."

"To get Piotr," he repeated mechanically. But he did not comprehend.

He passed a hand over his eyes. The apparition did not fade. Gradually he realized—with a dazing jumble of gladness and pain and reluctance—that it was indeed she, in the flesh.

"I can hardly realize it," he said at last. "I was just thinking of you. Often I am thinking of you. A hundred times I've been on the point of going to see you, to find out—"

"To find out?"

"How badly I hurt you."

"I told you I haven't blamed you."

"But that isn't true—it can't be true. It wouldn't be human not to resent me, what I've brought you. You do resent, don't you?"

"Why do you press me with what is ended? I don't want to think of it—or to be unjust. I—"

She turned sharply to face him. "Yes, if you must know it, I do resent."

"You have every right to resent," he answered sadly.

She started swiftly along the bank toward the village. He followed, trying to keep up with her, and with a real effort managed it. A quarter of a mile was thus traversed, neither speaking, she keeping always one pace ahead so that he could not see her face. Then she observed his heavy breathing and slackened her pace.

"I didn't realize I was walking so fast." Her voice was quiet again.

"I don't mind it," he assayed a laugh, a poor, mirthless attempt. "I need a counter-irritant just now."

"And I didn't mean

THE MURRAY LEDGER

O. J. JENNINGS, EDITOR.

Entered at the postoffice at Murray, Kentucky, for transmission through the mails as second class matter.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1914

Instructions have been sent out over the country from Washington to the effect that spurious $10 gold certificates are in circulation.—Exchange.

Just want to say, if there are any delinquent subscribers of the Ledger who are in possession of such a $10 gold certificate and wants to deposit it with us to his credit we'll take a pot shot at it. Just about as soon have a counterfeit ten as none at all.

With all due respect to the chief of police, it strikes us as a little inhumane to ask the ladies not to carry their money in purses, this cold weather.—Paducah Sun.

Be a dahlia and share to make 'em put it in their usual place of deposit.

For regular action of the bowels, easy natural movements, relief of constipation, try Doan's Reglets. 25c at all stores.

NO DIFFERENCE

The Proof is Here the Same as Everywhere.

For those who seek relief from kidney backache, weak kidneys, bladder ills, Doan's Kidney Pills offer hope of relief and the proof is here in Murray, the same as everywhere. Murray people have used Doan's and Murray people recommend Doan's, the kidney remedy used in America for fifty years. Why suffer? Why run the risk of dangerous kidney ills—fatal Bright's disease. Here's Murray proof. Investigate it.

H. B. Miller, Murray, Ky., says: "We still use Doan's Kidney Pills in our family and find that they do a world of good. You are at liberty to continue using my former endorsement of this remedy."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Miller had.—Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Jones—Belle

Paris, Tenn., Nov. 23.—Sam Jones, and Miss Mary Belle, quite a young couple, were quietly married here yesterday by Judge Mont. H. Goldston. The young pair were from Kirksey, Ky., and Paris being the "Gretchen Green" of Kentucky couples, they of course boarded the train for this place. After the ceremony was over they returned to Kirksey to reside.

Thos. W. Long, a prominent banker of Hopkinsville, died suddenly Saturday. Recently W. A. Wilgus who committed suicide made Mr. Long his sole heir. The $30,000 estate, by terms of the will, goes to the City of Hopkinsville. A sister of Mr. Long also died suddenly on Friday.

Bryan to Retire.

It is again said that Mr. Bryan will retire from the cabinet in March next. The explanation is that he has wearied of the work of the office and the confinement it enforces and that he prefers to take the field to "gird up the loins of Democracy," a task to which he referred in his Commoner recently. Though the report is first published in the New York Herald the paper is said to have the au-

Corns Quit, Pains Stop, With "Gets-It"

Quit Plasters, Salves and What-Not.

"After using 'GETS-IT' once you will never again have occasion for asking, 'What can I do to get rid of my corns?' 'GETS-IT' is the first sure, certain corn-cure ever known."

Why Suffer? Get With "GETS-IT." That's Yankel!

If you have tried other things by the score and will now try "GETS-IT" you will realize this glorious fact: "You probably are tired of sticking on tape that won't stay stuck, plasters that shift themselves right onto your corn, contraptions that make a bundle of your toe and press right down on the corn. Put two drops of 'GETS-IT' on that corn in two seconds. The corn is then doomed as sure as night follows day. The corn shrivels. There's no pain, no fuss. If you think this sounds too good to be true try it tonight on any corn, callus, wart or bunion. 'GETS-IT' is sold by druggists everywhere, and a bottle of sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. 'GETS-IT' is sold in Murray by H. P. Wear.

Despondency Due to Indigestion.

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried everything that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by all dealers.

A mule hitched to a buggy and driven by Wes Shelton, a well known and prominent citizen of the Kirksey section, ran away on the streets Wednesday morning and Mr. Shelton was thrown from the vehicle and sustained quite painful injuries. He was carried to the office of Dr. Gingles where his wounds were dressed.

Irregular bowel movements lead to chronic constipation and a constipated habit fills the system with impurities. HERBINE is a great bowel regulator. It purifies the system, regularizes the blood and puts the digestive organs in fine vigorous condition. Price 50c. Sold by Dale & Stubblefield.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

THANKSGIVING SPECIALS

Beginning Thu., Nov. 26, and Continuing Through Sat., Dec. 5,

We Will Offer Some Very SPECIAL PRICES on Many Lines of GOOD

SEASONABLE MERCHANDISE

Our reason for doing this is a very simple one. There is not a merchant through this section who can honestly boast of an old time fall business. We can give only two reasons for the dull business this fall: First, on account of the continued warm weather there has been no demand for heavy winter goods. Second, the continued talk of the so called hard times; (while this has been uncalled for, yet it has had its effect on business) For these two reasons we have been left with heavy stocks of winter goods that must be sold before the season is entirely over. You can truly give thanks Thursday that you have a chance to buy the best SEASONABLE MERCHANDISE at such a great saving in prices. We have not the space to mention everything that will be offered in this sale. Just make out your list in full, bring it to our store and see if we don't fill it for you at a great saving to you.

Why grin and bear all these ills when Sloan's Liniment kills pain?

"I have used your Liniment and can say it is fine. I have used it for sore throat, strained shoulder, and it acted like a charm." —Allen Dunn, Route 1, Box 88, Pine Valley, Miss.

"I am a painter and am constantly up and down ladders. About two years ago my left knee became lame and sore. It pained me at night at times till I could not rest, and I was contemplating giving up my trade on account of it when I learned to think of Sloan's Liniment. I had never tried it before, and I am glad to state that less than one 25c bottle fixed me up apparently as good as ever." —Charles C. Campbell, Florence, Texas.

PRETTY CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Acceptable Presents for Young and Old and How They Are Made

EASILY MADE CHRISTMAS NOVELTIES IN NECKWEAR

NECKWEAR and muff sets were never more fashionable than they are just now, and they are among the easiest to make of home-made gifts. They confer both style and comfort upon their wearers to the joy of those who receive them.

Neckpieces are simply straight lengths of velvet, plush or fur cloth cut a quarter of a yard wide and a yard or more in length. They are lined with satin and gathered in at the ends, where a tasseled ornament makes the finish. They fasten about the neck with a hook and eye or slide. Crocheted, passementerie or bead buckles and ornaments are used on them.

Muffs are barrel-shaped and made over beds of down or wool batting. These beds are bought ready made and are very cheap. Velvet coverings are usually gathered over them with ruffles at each end as shown in the picture. The muffs and ruffles are lined with satin. Silk cords or strands of large black beads are fashionable this season for decorating these sets.

HOLIDAY TIES AND BOWS IN RIBBON

INEXPENSIVE and pretty neckwear is made of narrow colored velvet ribbon. Bows and ties like those shown in the picture are often finished with small flowers of ribbon or chiffon.

HOMEMADE GIFTS ACCEPTABLE TO MEN

SELECTING gifts for one's menfolk is perplexing to the Christmas shopper; their needs are few, compared to those of women and children. Men like gifts that add something to their comfort and they like convenient things. They especially appreciate gifts made by the donor, and this year, there are some novelties for them which are not difficult to make at home.

A basket, which will do either for a den or a bedroom, is made very easily. The materials selected for it depend upon the purpose for which it is to be used. If it is intended for a convenient receptacle for ties, collar buttons, pins, needles, thread and various odds and ends, it is to be made of cretonne, brown linen or figured silk and finished with ribbon. But if for a den to hold pipes, matches, cigars, tobacco, etc., it is to be made of thin leather or heavy silk and finished with silver or gold-braid and cord.

A collar box covered with cretonne and suspended by ribbon hangers is a reliable gift sure of a welcome. A

DESK SETS FOR THE OFFICE OR HOME

AMONG the most attractive of novel presents for men are office or library sets consisting of portfolio, letter box, waste basket, candle shades, etc. They are made of handsome wall paper designs pasted over foundations of heavy cardboard or wood. A paper having a broad black and white stripes with dark red flowers, vaguely outlined on it, was used to cover the letter box and portfolio shown in the illustration. The candle shade is of dark red paper decorated with a fancy gold braid pattern. The ability to choose an attractive paper and paste it on neatly is about all that is required for making these sets. Leather effects, the tiffany papers, besides many artistic flowered patterns are suited to the purpose and make useful and tasteful gifts that men appreciate.

TOBACCO POUCH AND DRESSING CASE BAG

A TOBACCO pouch is made of four long, narrow triangles of leather or of a silky plush, sewed together. A silk lining is made in the same way and placed in the outer bag. The edges along the top are blind-stitched together. The bag is 7 1/2 inches long, each triangle 3 1/2 inches wide. A casing is stitched in the bag 1 1/2 inches from the top to accommodate narrow elastic bands for drawing strings. If the bag is to be hung up, ribbon or cord suspenders are sewed at each side.

INEXPENSIVE GIFTS IN COLLARS AND VESTES

A COLLAR and vestee in sheer or gaudy, to wear with tailored suits will be welcomed by every woman and costs almost nothing but the time for making. The facing collar is finished with hand-embroidered scallops or a band of fine narrow swiss embroidery, or lace, which extends down each side. The collar and vestee must be cut separately and joined at the neck line. The collar is wired to make it stand and face correctly.

A brilliant vestee, with collar and revers of filmy lace, is pictured made of broad velvet and shadow lace. The vestee is a band about the neck gradually widening to the waist line where it is trimmed into points. It fastens just above the points with hooks and eyes, and here three small, fancy buttons are set on for ornament. A short ruffle of lace forms a flaring collar which is supported with fine wires. The revers are made of straight pieces of lace draped in at each side and at the top in the neck line. Made of bright colored broadcloth this is one of the prettiest of novelties to be worn to embellish the blouse.

ACT OF 1914 IS CONSTRUED

JOLT GIVEN ANTI-TRUST LAW THROUGH DECISION OF THE COURT OF APPEALS.

MANY ACTIONS DISMISSED

International Harvester Company Scores Victory—Charged With Violating Anti-Trust Law.

(Special Frankfort Correspondence.)

Frankfort—County and commonwealth attorneys are anxiously awaiting the opinion of the court of appeals in the Imperial Tobacco Co. case, now pending, in the hope that the opinion will elucidate the status of the Kentucky anti-trust law in the light of the adverse decision of the United States supreme court.

The court of appeals directed the dismissal of proceedings against the International Harvester Co. of America, charged with conspiracy in restraint of trade in Taylor, Green, Nicholas, Mercer, Washington, Pendleton, Lincoln, Robertson, Marion, Harrison, Christian, Ohio, Gallatin, Carroll, Owen, Grant, Boone, Clinton and Garrard counties.

In cases appealed to the supreme court of the United States, the Harvester Co. contended that the Crecelius act, exempting growers' pools from the anti-trust prohibition, violated the Constitution of the United States, and this contention was upheld by that court.

The court of appeals, endeavoring to harmonize the original measure and amendments, had taken the view that with the Crecelius amendment, it was necessary to allege that the concerns accused had entered into an agreement for the purpose of inflating prices above their true value or depressing them below their true value.

At the hearing before the court of appeals after this decision the commonwealth insisted that the Crecelius act could be treated as void and still leave the old act in effect, and that so much of the accusation as alleged the purpose of inflating or depressing prices beyond their real value could be treated as surplusage.

Must Renew Contracts.

The Reliance Manufacturing Co., contractors, operating at the Eddyville penitentiary, won in their appeal from the Frankfort Circuit Court, the Board of Prison Commissioners must renew their contract on the same terms for four years from April, Judge Stout, in the Franklin Circuit Court, denied the company a mandatory injunction, requiring the Prison Commissioners to renew the contract, denying the petition on the ground that it would be contrary to public policy, but the Court of Appeals, in an opinion by Judge Carroll, said: "It may be as argued by counsel for the state that the lives and labor of human beings should not be made the subject of barter and sale; but the management and control of the penal institutions of the state and the labor of convicts therein confined is clearly a function that has been confided to the law-making power, and from his power alone or the people by constitutional amendments, redress must be sought. The courts are not at liberty for sentimental or humane reasons to say that it shall not be continued."

Judges Appointed.

John M. Lassing, of Newport, former Judge of the Court of Appeals, and J. L. Dorsey, of Henderson, former Circuit Judge, have been chosen by Gov. McCreary to sit on the Court of Appeals bench in the suit to test the constitutionality of the Workmen's Compensation Act. Judge C. S. Nunn, of the First District, and Judge J. B. Hannah, of the Sixth District, declined to sit in the case; as they were disqualified by owning stock in concerns affected by the law. Both Judge Lassing and Judge Dorsey resigned from the bench.

Trust Created in 1863.

The Court of Appeals, reversing the Jefferson Circuit Court in the case of Thomas Quigley's trustee against Laura Belle and Harriet Quigley, held that the trust created by Thomas Quigley, who died in 1863 in favor of his daughters, Laura Belle and Harriet, is a live trust and can not be discharged. He left property in trust for them and they used to have the trust discharged. Chief Justice Hobson wrote the opinion.

Pardons Alleged Slayer.

Judge Wadkins, convicted of manslaughter for killing Lewis Napier, in Breathitt county, August 6, 1910, and sentenced for two to twenty-one years, was pardoned by Gov. McCreary.

Widow Wins Suit.

Edith M. Ford, widow of Gale Ford, the Dixon, Tenn. banker, who was mysteriously drowned in the Ohio river at Louisville, August 29, 1912, won in the Court of Appeals, in her suit to recover $5,000 insurance from the Interstate Business Men's Accident Association. Ford was in financial straits and sought to Louisville to borrow money. It was proven that he had gone to the river to meet a boat, but the company resisted paying on the ground that he may have committed suicide.

Court of Appeals' Opinion.

The law enacted by the 1914 general assembly permits them to ship into dry territory liquor intended for the personal use of the consignee. Just as dealers from out of the state have been allowed to do.

The court of appeals in an opinion by Judge Miller decided this in the case of the Adams Express Co. against the Krigler & Krigler Co., appealing from the Kenton circuit court, notwithstanding the contention of Attorney General Garnett, who was permitted to agree on the side of the appellant, that the law was intended not to repeal the prohibitory act of 1906, but to strengthen it with reference to the Webb-Kenyon law.

Mr. Garnett reviewed the history of the legislation. He said that under the act of 1906 transportation of liquor into dry territory, except in the case of a person carrying his own liquor, was prohibited; but the court held that this law did not under the Webb-Kenyon act of congress prohibit shipments of liquor from out of the state into dry territory if it was intended for personal use, because the interstate shipments intended for an unlawful purpose. He said that after this decision the session of 1914 enacted the present law, and he asked the court to give such a construction to the latter act as would harmonize it with the existing law.

The Krigler & Krigler Co. secured an injunction in the Kenton circuit court requiring the Adams Express Co. to accept eight quarts of whiskey consigned to F. M. McKee at Williamsburg, Whitley county, which is dry territory. It was contended for the company that under the act of 1906 dealers in adjoining states could ship liquor into dry counties in Kentucky, while Kentucky dealers were prohibited from doing so, and that the act of 1914 simply gave Kentucky dealers the same right enjoyed by dealers elsewhere.

Advice is Given.

The great increase in the number of cases of scarlet fever, which accompanies the opening of the schools in the fall has caused the United States Public Health Service to issue at this time a bulletin on this serious disease of childhood. While the way in which scarlet fever is spread and its prevention are well known to health officers and physicians, the general public usually neglects to take those precautions which would diminish and prevent this disease so fatal to young children. The contagion of scarlet fever is spread principally from the discharges of the nose and throat, and the acts responsible for the transmission of the disease from the sick to the well, are those which are common in our everyday life, particularly among children; namely, kissing, the use of the common drinking cup and common towel, placing the mouth on articles such as lead pencil, candy, apples and the like, which have been previously placed in the mouth or infected with the nose and throat discharges of persons suffering from scarlet fever, or by being sprayed with such discharges in the case of being "coughed at" or "sneezed at." We possess no specific remedies against scarlet fever. The disease once contracted must run its course. The chief efforts for its control, therefore, must be directed toward its prevention. The most important means for preventing scarlet fever consist first, in the early recognition of the cases as they occur, and second, in a thorough isolation of those who are sick.

Hears Own Funeral Service.

From back in the rough lands of Pike county in Eastern Kentucky comes the story of an aged mountaineer, being carried to the log cabin meeting house to listen to the words of the exhorter or evangelist who, in the travels, through the mountains occasionally "on horseback." A typical mountaineer, living in one of the western sections of Eastern Kentucky, some distance from Elkhorn City, becoming ill, feared no funeral services would follow his death, therefore when the exhorter made his periodical trip through the hills he requested that his funeral be held. The day was appointed and the quaint mountaineer people from miles attired themselves in holiday garb and flocked to the log cabin church. The mountaineer who had been failing fast was much improved on the day of the funeral and was carried to the church. After the services an old fashioned dance was held. The story was told by mining inspectors who returned from a prospecting trip.

Meeting of Interest.

Gov. McCreary appointed Albert H. Hill, of Frankfort; County Judge Jas. M. Lang, of Paducah; D. W. Wright, of Bowling Green; W. S. Smith, of Glasgow, and L. W. Gaines, of Trenton, delegates to represent Kentucky at the Cumberland River Improvement Association, which met at Nashville.

Examinations Announced.

The last opportunity of applicants for appointment as county road engineers to be examined this year will be offered them Friday, November 27, the date set by State Road Commissioner R. C. Terrell. The next examination will be held January 16, immediately following the short course in road engineering at the State University January 1 to 15. During December the entire force of the State Commissioner's office will be engaged in a speaking campaign for the promotion of state aid in road building.

Didn't Recognize Her.

She was of somewhat haughty nature, and being on a shopping expedition with a friend, happened to catch a glimpse of an acquaintance she did not wish to recognize.

"Let us go this way past the silk counter. I just saw someone I don't care to meet."

"Who is he?" asked her friend, who did not see anyone near them. "Oh, some horrid woman with a smudge on her face. Of course, I have only a bowing acquaintance with her, and although her face is familiar I cannot remember her name."

They finished their shopping and the two women found themselves at the same point where one of them had seen her disagreeable acquaintance. "There she is again. Why, I do believe she's been here all the time," she said, pointing to the person in question.

"That woman? Goodness sakes, that's yourself you see in the mirror there!"

FOUND TIME FOR AMENITIES

How British and Boers Exchanged Compliments During the Long Siege of Kimberley.

During the Boer war Mr. Rhodes was shut up in Kimberley, and the Boers constantly shelled the town with long-range artillery. They were not very successful, for with 200 big shells they only killed 12 people. Meantime, Mr. Rhodes accomplished the extraordinary feat of getting a cannon built at his works inside the town. It was a regular modern rifled gun, and fired shells—also homemade—on each of which was stamped, "With compliments of C. J. Rhodes." The Boers themselves were not without a sense of humor. During Christmas, 1899, they were besieging Ladysmith, and on Christmas eve they fired ten plugged shells into the town, each with a piece of plum pudding inside, and each bearing the words, "With the season's compliments." Two of the shells were found by the garrison, and it was discovered that, like Mr. Rhodes, they were home-made, having been cast in a foundry at Johannesburg.

Domestic Menace.

On matters of feminine dress we seldom venture to express an opinion unless it be occasionally a word in defense of that liberalism which permits a woman to consider her freedom and comfort as well as her appearance. But we are prompted now to utter protest against the progress of American fashion designers, who, with a free field for the first time in history, can think of nothing better than to mimic the military uniforms of Europe.

Is it not enough that we should have the horrors of the war thrust upon us by the news, filling our imaginations, coloring our dreams? Is it not enough that there should be signs of a military epidemic in all our magazines, articles on strategy, stories of fighting and bloodshed? Must we have the world's nightmare intensified by the very clothes the women wear?—Chicago Post.

Gasoline at the Poles.

The Amundsen and Scott expeditions were greatly hindered through losing much of their gasoline—a loss that, in fact, had much to do with the disaster that befell Captain Scott. Mr. T. Brooks of the Mellor Institute of Industrial Research thinks he knows what caused the loss. At low temperatures, he says, ordinary kerosene tends to pulverize, and may lose zero it pulverizes quickly and may lose zero it pulverizes slowly, at a higher temperature. Now, hard solder usually contains a large percentage of tin, and so, of course, disintegrates in the same way. Consequently the gasolines cans are likely to leak at the soldered seams. Mr. Brooks suggests that polar explorers carry their supplies of gasoline in containers made of glass, or of some metal unaffected by extreme cold.—Youth's Companion.

OPTIMISM IN SOUTH

Heavy Financial Depression Gradually Being Relieved.

COTTON GROWERS GET MONEY

National Banks Are Reaching Out Helping Hand and Extending Financial Aid to Farmers—Loans on Warehouse Receipts.

The hearts of the people of the South have been gladdened and a feeling of optimism is permeating the atmosphere. The heavy financial depression which gripped the cotton states during the early part of September is gradually being relieved and money is becoming freer. The banking institutions of the southern states are coming to the aid of the cotton growers with cash, advancing loans on cotton warehouse receipts.

Although it will take some time for the effect of the money being put into circulation to be felt to any great extent, the assurance that something is being done to relieve the situation has lent courage to the business man as well as to the farmer. Because of the fact that the cotton must be hauled to town and properly warehoused before loans will be made on the staple the work of advancing loans has been necessarily slow.

According to dispatches from various portions of the cotton belt there have been thousands of bales retired from the open market and money advanced to the growers at the rate of six cents a pound, or approximately $30 a bale. This money is represented principally by the Aldrich-Vreeland currency furnished the national banks by the United States treasury department. Under the provisions of this currency measure the cotton must be properly warehoused before loans can be made upon it.

Absence of Cash Felt.

It has been the absence of cash that has most greatly affected the South. There never has been a time since the European war began when there was not a demand for the ware of the merchant, but no one had money to pay for them. This condition was most seriously felt in the cities. In the country towns the merchants rallied to the aid of the farmers and supplied their immediate wants by accepting cotton in payment of their purchases. Old accounts were also settled with cotton. But soon the average country merchant had more cotton on hand than he knew what to do with. He also found it difficult to purchase from the wholesale houses and the jobbers as they were not prepared to take cotton from the merchant.

The prospects are now that this condition of affairs will soon undergo a change. Instead of trading his cotton to the merchant for the placing his bales in the nearest warehouse. The receipts he receives from the warehouse he takes to the bank he has been in the habit of carrying on his financial transactions with, using them as a collateral for borrowing money. In this manner real money is being put into circulation.

In Georgia and a portion of Tennessee this condition of affairs is especially true. The national banks are reaching out a helping hand and extending aid to the distressed farmer. Following a recent meeting of the currency association of Georgia an announcement was made that the national banks of this state and a part of Tennessee are making loans on cotton warehouse receipts. These loans are being made on the basis of six cents a pound.

Cotton Must Be Stored.

The only provision that has been stipulated by these banks is that the warehouse in which the cotton is stored must be acceptable to the bank. A great number of these loans are being made through the agency banks of the national institutions which gives it a much wider scope of operation. While it is true that this work has been going on for some weeks, the fact did not become generally known until the announcement made recently by the currency association.

It has been estimated that the national banks have loaned something like $50,000,000 on cotton within the past few weeks. There is still a large amount of available currency on hand in the banks that can be loaned on cotton. According to the figures recently issued by the United States department of agriculture this year's crop is estimated at approximately $750,000,000, figuring on a basis of ten cents a pound.

An Atlanta state bank was one of the first to offer any real financial aid to the cotton farmers of the South. The activities of this bank, however, were confined to its customers in Georgia alone. This bank is loaning money on cotton at six cents a pound and storing the cotton in its own warehouse in Atlanta. The bank officials say they will loan as much as $30,000 to the cotton growers of Georgia who are members of this bank.

According to the offer of this bank it will lend money to the grower at six cents a pound. The current rates of interest will be charged on the notes which will mature July 1, 1915. At the expiration of that time the borrower will have the option of extending the note to a longer period. The borrower will have the privilege of selling his cotton at any time he desires, providing he can get enough for his cotton to pay off the note and the interest. The bank also offers to sell cotton for any of the borrowers without additional charge.

Festus J. Wade Plan.

The Festus J. Wade plan for relieving the financial situation in the South is receiving universal attention at the present time. It has received the endorsement of President Wilson, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and the members of the federal reserve board. The plan has also been enthusiastically received by bankers in various cities throughout the cotton territory and bids fair to be a success.

According to the plan of Festus J. Wade, the St. Louis banker, a pool will be raised by subscription from the banks of the South and the other sections of the country. This pool is to be represented by agency banks in all agency banks will, according to this plan, make loans on cotton warehouse receipts. The agency banks will then forward the warehouse receipts to the headquarters of the pool and be reimbursed for the money advanced to the farmer.

WOMEN BOOST COTTON GOODS

Merchants of Cities Join Movement to Popularize Wearing of Cotton-Made Garments.

The wearing of more cotton-made apparel is a movement that was started by the southern women in Washington, and which has been taken up enthusiastically by the women in all sections of the country. Hand in hand with this movement was one instigated by the dry-goods merchants in all of the large cities and in a great number of the smaller cities to popularize the wearing of cotton-made garments.

A cotton styles show was recently held in Washington. The shows displayed at this show, held in one of the hotels in Washington, will be worn by the official women of that city at a cotton ball to be held during December. Washingtonians thronged the styles show and gazed in wonder at the many dainty creations made exclusively from cotton materials by the modistes. In other cities cotton balls have been the leading social functions, and the popularizing of cotton-made garments has become a national movement.

The department stores in the large cities joined heartily in the movement. Some of the stores set aside a week when special sales of cotton goods and cotton-made garments were held. Much space was used in their show windows for the display of the great variety of garments made from cotton goods. Though general in character, both of these movements have had a wholesome effect in stimulating the demand for cotton-made goods, which, of course, will mean the consumption of thousands of additional bales by American mills.

In New York City the Federation of Women's clubs with a membership of about 100,000 have taken up the movement to encourage more cotton goods and the wearing of more cotton-made garments from cotton cloth. The officers of this organization have sent an urgent appeal to the members asking them to aid their southern sisters by using cotton goods whenever possible.

The American Association of Cotton Manufacturers have been awake to the opportunities which the inability of the European countries to use American cotton has afforded them, and are making preparations for a greater output of cotton cloth than has ever been produced by American mills. During a recent meeting of the national association at Lenox, Mass., the question of the manufacture of more cotton cloth and the providing of markets for their output was taken into consideration.

Plan for Salvation.

When the cotton situation became critical in South Carolina and aid from the federal government seemed hopeless, Governor Cole Hines called a special session of the legislature. Almost every senator and representative came to the capital with some great plan for the salvation of the state from the disaster which threatened it by the demoralization of the cotton market.

From among the great mass of bills that were presented, two became the most prominent. One provided a state bond issue to valorize the 1914 crop, and the other to make it a misdemeanor or to plant cotton during 1915. While the legislators appeared in favor of the reduction of the cotton acreage, the fact that they killed the bill showed that they were not in favor of doing away with the cotton crop entirely in 1915.

Egypt Also Affected.

The southern cotton growers have not been the only ones to suffer from the failure of the cotton market, for word has been received that Egypt also has been seriously affected. This country in the far East grows a considerable quantity of the fleecy staple which is disposed of almost entirely through the London exchange.

Egypt has not only suffered from the failure to sell their product, but the pink boll worm—played havoc with the crop. It is reported that the growers of Egypt made only about one-half of their normal crop. When the Egyptians realized the cotton situation, the ministry of agriculture at once issued a proclamation to the cotton growers calling upon them to cut their acreage 60 per cent, and the cultivators were instructed to plant rice, corn, beans, and other grains and food products.

CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH!
IT'S MERCURY AND SALIVATES

Straighten Up! Don't Lose a Day's Work! Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels With "Dodson's Liver Tone."

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. Take a dose of the vile, dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with your bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you feel sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store or dealer and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

BALANCE KEPT BY NATURE

Increase of the Human Race Seems to Be Regulated by Wars and Other Devastations.

Every year, according to scientists who attempt to keep the general records, at least 80,000,000 human beings are born on this earth and 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 die. This indicates a daily birth rate of about 220,000 and a death rate of 180,000. The daily increase in population therefore is about 40,000. The total population of the globe is estimated at 1,500,000,000.

The ravages of war do little to impede the increase. Far more effective have been the upheavals of nature. The Franco-Prussian war killed about 1,500,000 in seven months. The death roll of the Russo-Japanese reached about 200,000. A single earthquake (1737 in India) has been estimated to have caused 300,000 deaths. The fatalities of the Messina earthquake in 1908 cannot have been far short of 100,000. A tidal wave in 1896 drowned 27,000 persons in Japan, causing a greater loss of life than the whole war with China in 1894. The earthquake in Japan in 1793 is said to have killed 200,000 people. The Lisbon earthquake in 1755 destroyed 50,000 human lives, while 40,000 were lost in the same year in earthquake in Persia.

FIRE MILITARY CENSOR.

Hannibal was in a bad temper, relates the Cleveland Plain-Dealer. "Who is that little fellow over there with the stylus and tablet?" he asked his first aid.

"That's a war correspondent from Carthage, general."

"What's he doing?"

"He's counting the elephants and the Balearic slingers."

"What's he doing that for?"

"He's doing it because he's a war correspondent."

The great Carthaginian emitted a deep growl.

"Hamil!" he said, "I'm going to hold you strictly responsible for this mess."

copy. If he writes at all let him be little everything. Let him say I have ten elephants where I have 50. Let him write that I have three legions where I have ten. Let him call me a wooden-headed blunderer. Then let him lose his copy where our Roman friends will find it. It's up to you, Hamil. If the fellow gets balky let him to my biggest fighting elephant's trunk, when the next batch of Roman senators comes up against us, and let him get all the war he wants at short range, Hamil!"

And the first military censorship was established.

HOW TO HEAL SKIN AND SCALP TROUBLES

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes, and similar itching skin and scalp troubles.

At any reliable druggist's get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap. With the resinol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stops with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.—Adv.

Poisonous Disinfectant Made Safe.

With the increased use of bichloride of mercury as a disinfectant there have resulted numerous cases of suicidal and accidental poisoning, the latter being due to mistaking this powerful corrosive poison for medicine in tablet form. For preventing this, and particularly for preventing accidental poisoning, various ways of preparing the poison so that it will readily be distinguished from any other substance has been proposed, but the solution of the whole problem now seems to have been found in the plan of mixing a powerful emetic with the bichloride of mercury. This is a tartar emetic so compounded that it will exert its full emetic action before the corrosive sublimation can begin its action, causing violent nausea until the stomach is entirely emptied. It is stated that the disinfecting power of the bichloride of mercury is in no way impaired by mixing the emetic with it.

WHY CATCH COLD

One-half of the Deaths and Two-thirds of the Sickness is the Direct Result of Catching Cold.

Nothing could be of greater vital interest to the family than to know how to avoid catching cold.

COLDS THAT KILL

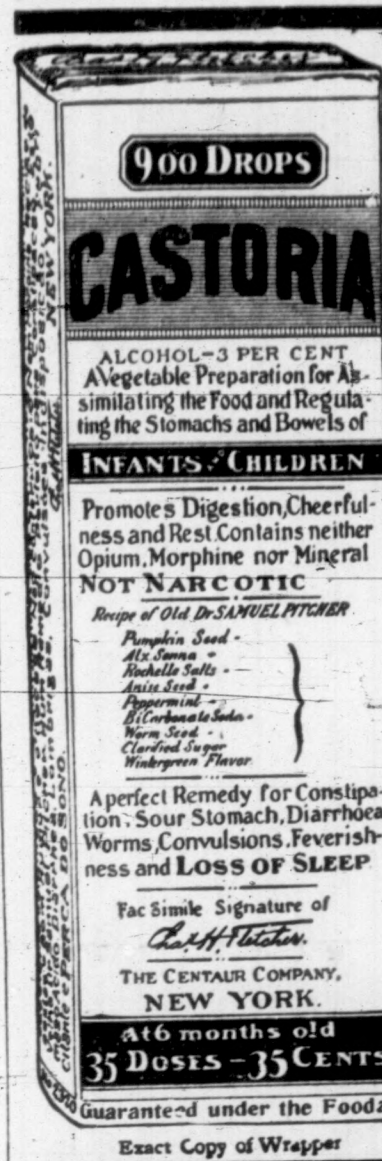

If it be true, as one famous doctor says, that catching cold can be avoided, think what it means. Two-thirds of the sickness that now oppresses the people would be largely done away with if people knew how to avoid catching cold. Catching cold is a very common experience in numerous households. People have come to believe that there is no way to avoid it.

CAN BE AVOIDED.

People are taught in the "ills of Life" how to avoid the countless drags that catching cold makes upon the vital organs. Get it and read it and judge for yourselves of its value and practicability. It is issued by the Peruna Co., of Columbus, Ohio.

Our Early Chinese Trade.

The rapid growth of our early trade with China is shown by the fact that the 37 vessels carrying in 1805 more than three-quarters millions' worth of goods to Canton, represented a larger fraction of our total foreign commerce than our trade with the whole of China does today. The silver imported to balance American trade with China averaged more than two and a half millions annually in the 30 years down to 1827, and reached a maximum of seven and a half millions in 1818.—John Ford, in Youth's Companion.

Men Fight On Their

Stomachs

Napoleon said. A man with a weak stomach is pretty sure to be a poor fighter. It is difficult—almost impossible—for anyone, man or woman, if digestion is poor, to succeed in business or socially—or to enjoy life. In tablet or liquid form

Dr. Pierce's

Golden Medical Discovery

helps weak stomachs to strong, healthy action—helps them to digest the food that makes the good, rich, red blood which nourishes the entire body.

This vegetable remedy, to a great extent, puts the liver into activity—oil the machinery of the human system so that those who spend their working hours at the desk, behind the counter, or in the home are rejuvenated into vigorous health.

Has brought relief to many thousands every year for over forty years. It can relieve you and doubtless restore to you your former health and strength. At least you owe it to yourself to give it a trial. Sold by Medicine Dealers or send for a trial box of Tablets—Dr. Pierce's Laxative, Hotel & Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.

MERCHANDISE

O. T. Hale & Co.

MURRAY, KENTUCKY

PURCHASE AND SALE OF SEASONABLE
MERCHANDISE

OUR BUYER attended the sales recently held by the St. Louis Manufacturers and Jobbers, and on account of depressions caused by the European wars, the very mild weather all through the fall months, and the unfavorable conditions in all of the cotton growing states, upon which St. Louis depends mostly for her volume of business, the prices being made by them was the lowest that we have ever seen made on new seasonable, desirable merchandise. We bought very liberally of the good bargains, and now propose to pass them along to our trade. In addition to these we have marked liberal reductions on our entire stock, and we propose to make this the greatest bargain feast, the greatest selling event in the history of Murray's greatest sales. This sale comes at a time when it will do the most good. You have never before had an opportunity to buy goods at this time of the season, at such advantageous prices. It will pay you to come prepared to fill your needs for every member of the family for the entire season.
